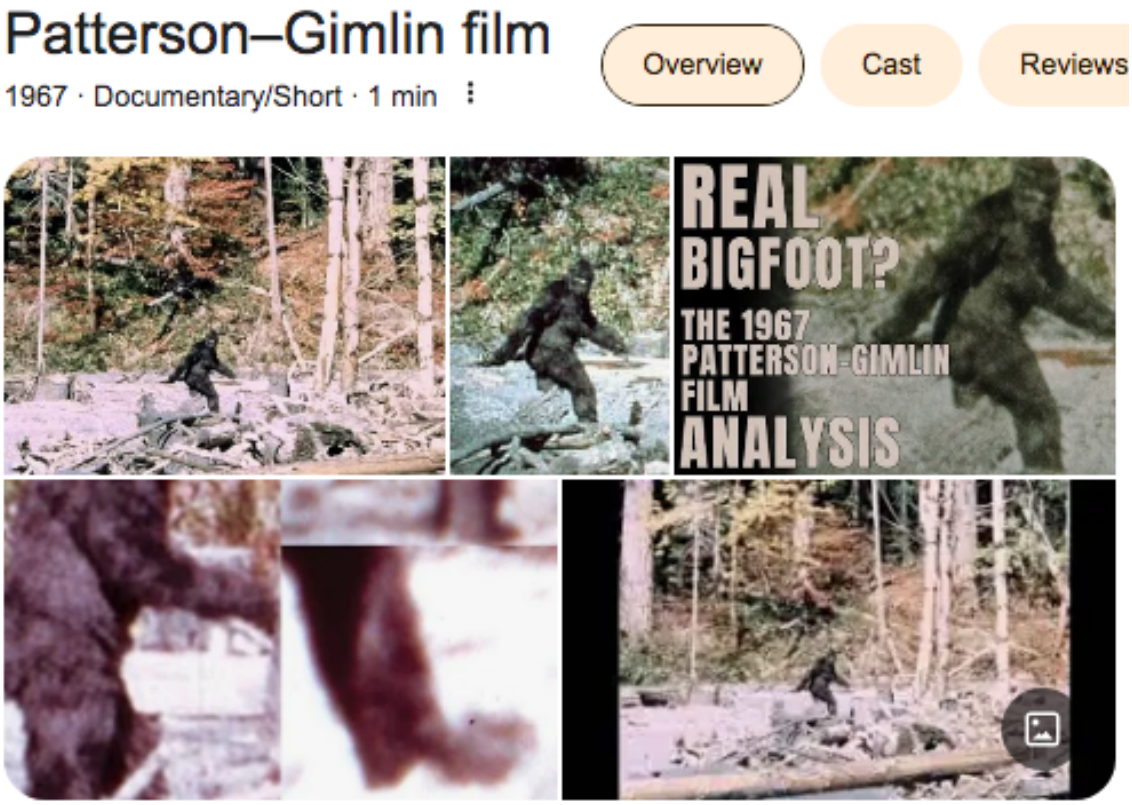
DOGMAN PICTURES REAL OR FAKED



I believe Dogman and Bigfoot exist however; I have never looked at a picture that to me is a real chimera except on rare occasions such as the Patterson Gimlin film.

When you put out a story do not put a picture of a faked Dogman, Bigfoot or other chimera because those in the know will not read or pass your data around. I do not trust people to fabricate data.

Today we are inundated with FAKED pictures of these chimera to a point that it's hard for me to watch these video's. If they fake the pictures than why should I believe the stories that they tell using these faked picture. I have come to refuse to listen to most videos online by moderators who look and sound more like geeks who I also do not trust.

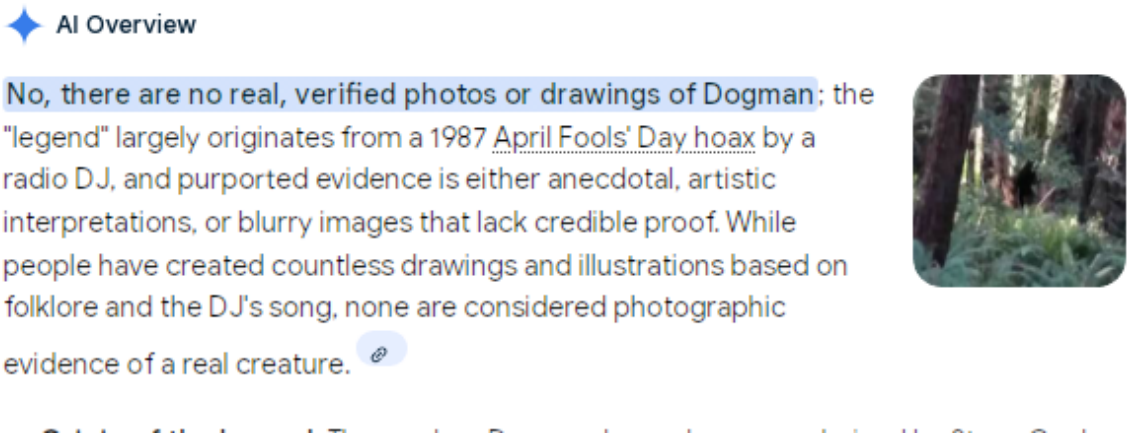
I do not trust AI online because the bloodline that owns it is linked to the DEEP STATE. When I quote online AI data, I am careful to mention this. See below.

IS AI DECEIVING US?
WHAT DOES AI SAY ABOUT DOGMAN AND BIGFOOT ETC.



AI Overview
No, there are no real, verified photos or drawings of Dogman; the "legend" largely originates from a 1987 April Fools' Day hoax by a radio DJ, and purported evidence is either anecdotal, artistic interpretations, or blurry images that lack credible proof. While people have created countless drawings and illustrations based on folklore and the DJ's song, none are considered photographic evidence of a real creature.

The DEEP STATE does not want us to know that these creatures exist, so of course the online AI will lie to us making comments like what you see above.

I have done my homework on these creatures and the legends about them and history that mentions there existence. They go back thousands of years to those who actually worshipped them and used them as slave labor or as a military weapon.

I have no doubt that Indians had encounters with them and referred to them as their Big Brothers. Bigfoot and Indian DNA tell us that Indian DNA was used to create Bigfoot by "the gods" aka aliens. If you have questions Google David Paulides data where he talks about Dr. Melba Ketchum who analyzed the DNA of Bigfoot.

Those who do not want the truth to come out have attacked Dr. Ketchum. The lives of she and her scientist's have been threatened and their work belittled. The DEEP STATEA does not threaten normal people; they threaten WHISTLE BLOWERS who are putting out the truth.

It has been a long and tedious battle to prove that Sasquatch exists. We have had the proof for now, but building enough data to convince mainstream science has taken a lot of time. Trying to took almost two years. It seems mainstream science just can't seem to tolerate something contro especially from a group of primarily forensic scientists and not "famous academians" aligned wit universities, even though most of our sequencing and analysis was performed at just such facilities.
We encountered the worst scientific bias in the peer review process in recent history. I am calling "Galileo Effect". Several journals wouldn't even read our manuscript when we sent them a pre-subm inquiry. Another one leaked our peer reviews. We were even mocked by one reviewer in his peer revi finally found a new journal that accepted our paper and had it peer reviewed using blind peer which we passed. However, we had to acquire this journal when they backed out of publishi manuscript five minutes before it was to go live in order to keep our passing peer reviews obtained journal. We chose to do this rather than spend another five years just trying to find another jou publish and hoping that decent, open minded reviewers would be chosen. We renamed the journal our agreement, DeNovo. The new journal is aimed at offering not only more choices and better se scientists wanting to submit a manuscript, but also reviewers and editors that will be fair, unb treatment we received. Lastly, we have adhered to all of the standards set in the link below for

SPECIAL REPORT

Bigfoot DNA Study: Making an End Run Around Science

A Texas veterinarian and other forensic specialists publish a study that purportedly shows novel DNA sequences that they conclude are evidence of Sasquatch. But the drama surrounding the paper is just the latest in a long series of events surrounding the Ketchum Bigfoot DNA project.

SHARON HILL

Is this the news Bigfooters have been waiting decades for? Or will it all end up a bust? A convoluted and controversial story of Bigfoot DNA evidence came to a head on February 13, 2013, when a long-promised paper by veterinarian Dr. Melba S. Ketchum was finally released.

The study, titled "Novel North American Hominins, Next Generation Sequencing of Three Whole Genomes and Associated Studies," was published in the inaugural issue of DeNovo: Journal of Science. The press release for the publication states that, with ten coauthors, Ketchum analyzed DNA from 111 high-quality samples submitted from across North America.

The publication of the study was

The statement noted that twenty

"Dr. Ketchum is prominent Bigfoot researcher who trades heavily on her academic pedigree, a rarity in the field. Dr. Ketchum's 2012 study claimed that her "team of scientists… confirms the existence of a novel hominine hybrid species, commonly called Bigfoot or Sasquatch, living in North America," and that Bigfoot is a human relative of Indians that arose some 15,000 years ago. WHAT DOES GOOGLE AI CLAIMWE ALL NEED TO KNOW THAT WE CAN NOT TRUST GOOGLS AIONCE YOU LOOK INTO

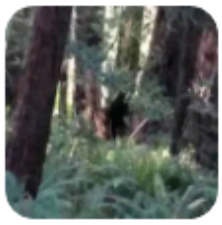
WHO RUNS AI AND CONTROLS THEIR DATA YOU WILL KNOW WHY



No, there are no real, verified photos or drawings of Dogman; the "legend" largely originates from a 1987 April Fools' Day hoax by a radio DJ, and purported evidence is either anecdotal, artistic interpretations, or blurry images that lack credible proof. While people have created countless drawings and illustrations based on folklore and the DJ's song, none are considered photographic evidence of a real creature.

- Origin of the legend: The modern Dogman legend was popularized by Steve Cook, a radio DJ in Traverse City, Michigan. He created a song called "The Legend," which told fictional stories of encounters, and aired it on April 1, 1987, creating a massive hoax.
- Lack of evidence: Despite its popularity, there is no scientific or verifiable evidence of the creature's existence. Searches for evidence have been fruitless.
- Popular images are illustrations: The images most often associated with the Dogman are artistic renderings, including a famous charcoal drawing from a contest held by the radio station, which has become a popular representation of the creature.
- Folklore vs. reality: While some people believe in Dogman, the evidence points to the creature being a modern myth, a work of creative fiction, or folklore that has taken on a life of its own through storytelling and media.

Here I disagree with some of what AI states. I say this because their ARE credible pictures but they are rare. Patterson Gimlin films have been diagnosed until the cows came home and found to be AUTHENITIC.

AI Overview

Fake "Dogman" pictures circulating online originate from a variety of sources, including intentional hoaxes, images from films/special effects projects mistakenly taken as real, misidentification of known animals (like bears or wolves), and increasingly, AI-generated images.

Specific origins for common fake images and videos include:

- The "Gable Film": A widely circulated video (and stills from it) which was later admitted to be a hoax created by Traverse City disc jockey Steve Cook, who was also behind the original 1987 "The Legend" April Fools' Day hoax song that popularized the modern Dogman legend.
- Film Concept Footage: A viral clip convincing thousands of people it was a real werewolf caught on tape was actually concept footage for an independent werewolf film posted by the creator online.
- Manipulated Photos: Some images are existing photos (e.g., of a real dog or bear) that have been altered or had elements added to create a cryptid appearance.
- Stolen/Misused Photos: Photos of real, often injured, animals have been used in "bait and switch" scams to generate emotional responses and shares, later being changed to fraudulent listings.
- Stock Images: Generic stock photos of animals are sometimes used and misrepresented in various online discussions or "sightings".
- AI Generation: Modern tools allow for the creation of convincing fake images, and influencers and hoaxers have begun using AI to generate fake animal pictures that are then circulated as real.

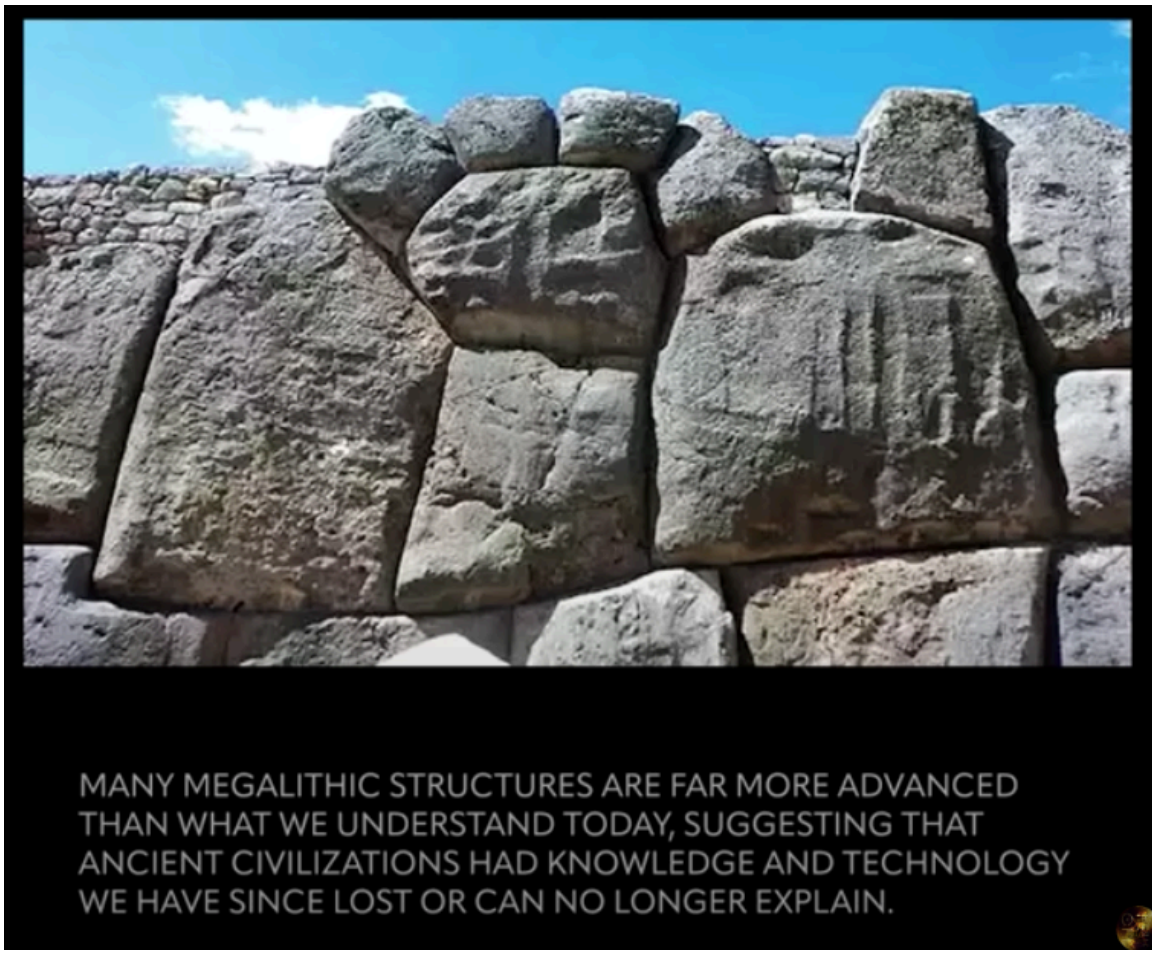
In general, the online Dogman community is considered prone to these hoaxes and misidentifications, with little scientific rigor. Many images lack detail due to blurriness or low resolution, which helps obscure their fake nature.

MY COMMENTS

Much of what AI is saying above is true which again is why I do not click into these videos as I said about. However, what AI does not mention and what they cannot account for are the millions of eyewitness who encounter them.

Yes, some will be hoaxers but most people I listen to who have these encounters do not like talking about them because of the PDS type situations they live with over their encounters.

There are many reports of friendly Bigfoot we do not hear much about.



MANY MEGALITHIC STRUCTURES ARE FAR MORE ADVANCED THAN WHAT WE UNDERSTAND TODAY, SUGGESTING THAT ANCIENT CIVILIZATIONS HAD KNOWLEDGE AND TECHNOLOGY
WE HAVE SINCE LOST OR CAN NO LONGER EXPLAIN.

What AI also does not want to talk about is the history of aliens and these creatures as being other dimensional and part of the dark spiritual agendas spoken of over history and even in the Bible where they were referred as evil spiritual beings.

Not all fall into that category in the Bible or ancient Mesopotamian lore either. It looks like the Bigfoot were genetically modified chimera created to do the heavy lifting by aliens "the gods".

Bigfoot and Dogman, according to ancient lore, were also created to guard what is going on underground where ALIENS and evil beings travel through tunnel systems and live.

This is where ancient legends and the Bible tell us they were forced to live as punishment for mingling with mankind and causing the FALL OF MANKND.

The primary Bible verse about Jesus forcing evil beings underground is found in the story of the Gerasene demoniac, where the demons beg Jesus not to command them to go into the "abyss" or "bottomless pit" (Luke 8:31). Instead, Jesus gives them permission to enter a herd of pigs, which then rush down a steep bank into the lake and are drowned, a narrative also found in Mark and Matthew (Mark 5:1-20, Matthew 8:28-34).

This is why so many sighting are found around spots where a lot of digging is going on or in bolder fields that appear to be the remnants of ancients towns or cities in the past that have been blown to smithereens by "the gods." There seem to be underground tunnel system openings in bolder fields.

Over the years, the United Nations has gradually purchased most of our precious National parks in the United States of America, and now they are working on buying all major U.S. cities. But why? What is the bigger picture?What is coming to America?

Granted these pictures may have come from a movie however many movies are made that share hidden truths that the public is not supposed to know about.

An example would be "FIRST ENCOUNTERS OF A THIRD KIND." with Richard Dryfus.

We know that these doors exist around the world.

People who wander where they are not supposed to go in national parks report seeing soldiers of some kind dressed in outfits that are not the normal military. They carry massive guns as they travel in these remote spots..

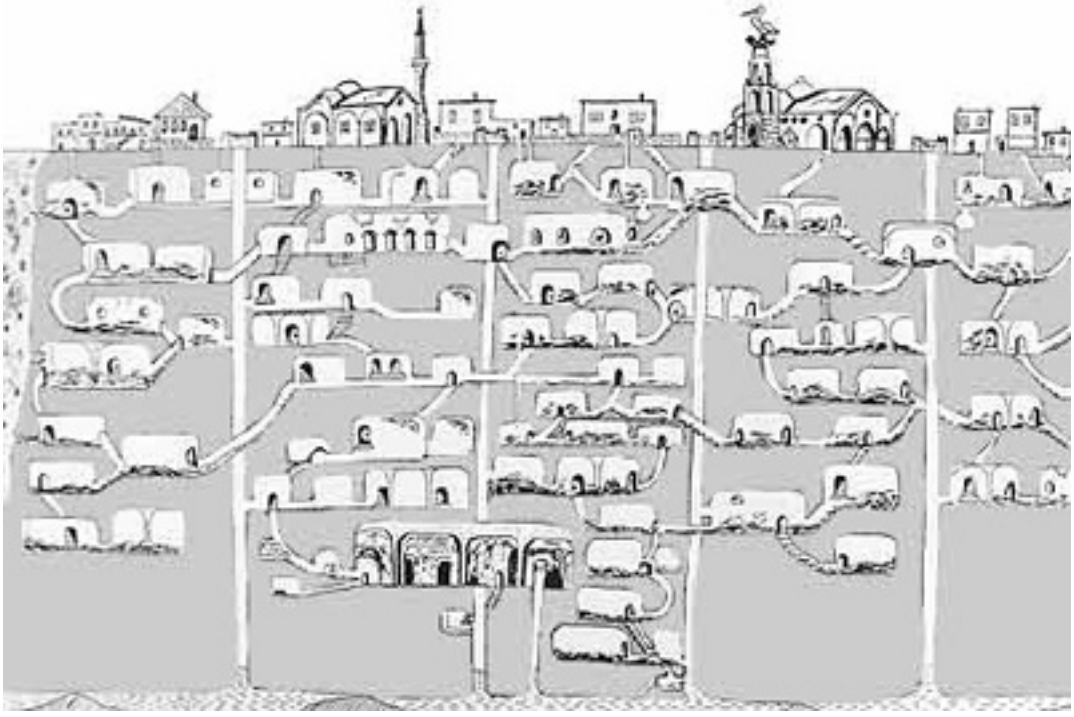
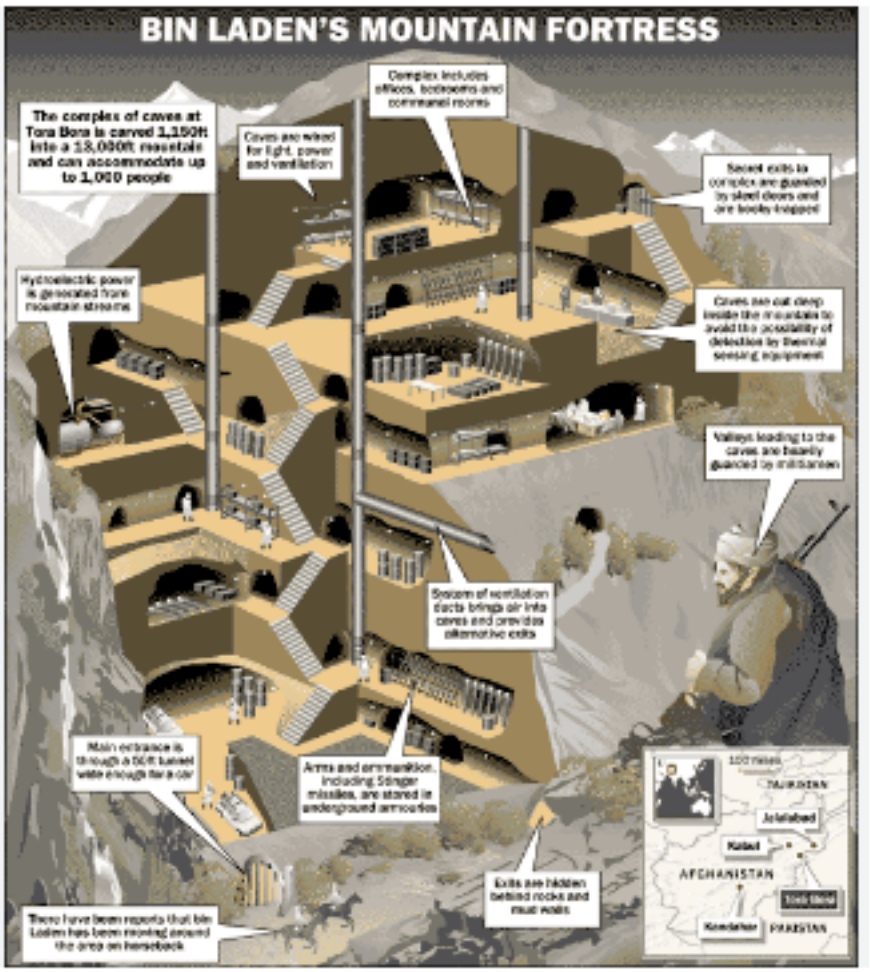
This is a real picture of some of the underground openings to what is going on underground in our country.

They are unknown installations the public s not allowed into or know about.



Some of these ancient underground safe zones are ancient. They were built thousands of years ago.



BIN LADEN'S MOUNTAIN FORTRESS
The complex of caves at Tora Bora is carved 1,150ft into a 13,000ft mountain and can accommodate up to 1,000 people
Caves are wired for light, power and ventilation
Complex includes offices, bedrooms and communal rooms
Secret exits to complex are guarded by steel doors and are booby-trapped
Hydroelectric power is generated from mountain streams
Caves are cut deep inside the mountains to avoid the possibility of detection by thermal sensing equipment
Valleys leading to the caves are heavily guarded by militiamen
System of ventilation ducts brings air into caves and provides alternative exits
Main entrance is through a 50ft tunnel wide enough for a car
Arms and ammunition, including Stinger missiles, are stored in underground armouries
Exits are hidden behind rocks and mud walls
There have been reports that bin Laden has been moving around the area on horseback

My point is do not trust Google AI. DO YOUR OWN HOMEWORK. Google AI seems to be a misinformation and disinformation link. All is not what it seems.
